

Abstract

Machinery Guarding apparatus and a clamping device for the same is provided in a modular arrangement and is easily fitted and adaptable by the user to individual requirements. The guarding includes a clamping device which allows the guarding components to be fitted and held together with the clamping device allowing a plurality of components to be selectively positioned radially depend therefrom in a plurality of different directions.

